Customized Lasik is also known as custom wavefront Lasik or wavefront Lasik. It is one of the best surgical procedures for attaining customized and personalized treatment for various vision-related problems.

The procedure uses hi-tech and advanced wavefront technology to acquire precision and personalized treatment for vision problems. The advanced wavefront technique specializes in analyzing and evaluating each and every characteristic of the patient's eye.

The best characteristic of this procedure is that through thorough analysis and evaluation of the characteristics of the eye, it tries to recreate the previous level of vision prescribed in the eyeglass prescription.

Customized Lasik eye surgery in Delhi through computerized technology is used to define refractive problems and errors in different patients. Detailed information on how light rays travel to the retina is examined and evaluated through wavefront technology. This procedure is the best as it takes into consideration the personalized eye anatomy of each patient. The excimer laser is programmed in a customized form to reshape the eye for vision clarity. This procedure is considered to be superior to other conventional forms of treatment as the treatment can be designed in a personalized manner to suit the special characteristics of each patient in a customized manner. It takes into consideration every minutest measurement to program the excimer laser to rectify the refractive errors.
