Every visitor to your website desires a positive user experience that is facilitated by intuitive navigation. Instead of abandoning them in the maze, you should provide them with a well-structured map. Implement as many of the above suggestions as possible for the best results. Don't forget to test your site's functionality before it goes live. A malfunctioning website isn't user-friendly, and it won't help your website rank well in search engines. Scroll down to get some quick tips on website design and development.
